Summary of Services or Products

Freese and Nichols is a privately owned engineering consulting firm serving clients across the Southern United States. Founded in 1894, we offer stability as a long-term trusted advisor and use our national expertise to meet contemporary challenges. Freese and Nichols has earned the reputation for providing clients with practical solutions to complex environmental regulations. Our biologists, ecologists, geologists, engineers, wetland scientists, geomorphologists, arborists, foresters, fisheries specialists, and GIS analysts can quickly assess environmental challenges and regulatory requirements. From there, we develop strategies to help you avoid or minimize costly and time-consuming regulatory obstacles. Through our extensive project experience, we've built strong relationships with state and federal regulatory agencies. We routinely work directly with these agencies, and several of our staff scientists are their previous employees. These experiences have given us a thorough understanding of regulations, requirements, and agency preferences for compliance actions, permit applications, and document submissions. We work on behalf of our clients to ensure accurate regulatory compliance and agency approvals, reducing both project risks and uncertainties.
